Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on March 23, 2004 has been entered.

Election/Restrictions

No claims are currently withdrawn from further consideration pursuant to 37 CFR 1.142(b), as being drawn to a nonelected invention or species, there being no allowable generic or linking claim. Applicant elected Group II (method of using surgical implant material), species e (spacer), species 4 (biodegradable material), and Species I (fastener method) in the paper filed Applicant timely traversed the restriction (election) requirement in the reply filed on December 5, 2002.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 118, 122, 128, and 132 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention. It is not clear what it meant by the language "expanding the implant into the tissue" or "expanding the implant into the bone" as now claimed.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- (e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

Claims 62, 69, 76, 116-119, 124-129, and 134 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Kensey (US 4,890,612). Kensey anticipates the claim language where the puncture and surrounding area is the implantation site as claimed, and the expansion occurs by absorbing the liquid of blood at the implantation site; see the abstract, column 6, lines 24-51, column 7, lines 1-65 and claim 1 of Kensey.

With regard to claims 117 and 127, the claim language is fully met because expansion of the implant makes the implant more near more of the tissue at the site because it inherently stretches and exposes more tissue.

With regard to claims 124 and 125, the claim language is fully met because the foam is compressed before insertion and while it is being made; see column 6, lines 43-48.

Claims 62, 69, 76, and 116-134 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Draenert (US 5,084,050). Draenert meets the claim language where the implantation site is in bone and the sheath swells or expands when contacted with body fluids; see the abstract, column 2, lines 53-67, column 3, lines 49-58, column 4, lines 20-65, column 5, lines 12-60 and Example 1.

With regard to claims 124-134, the step of compression is inherently present in Draenert's device in the manufacturing process; see Example 1. Specifically, when the molten implant is in the mold and the bone screw is fit into the metal casing of the mold. This step inherently compresses the material in the casing as the material would have to be pushed out of the way and compressed between the screw and the inner wall of the mold.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed March 23, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. In particular, Applicant argues that Kensey does not teach expansion of the implant at the implant site. In response, the Examiner has modified the rejection to explain that the implant site is not only the actual puncture, but also includes the surrounding tissue as well. For this reason, the claims are still read upon by Kensey.

Conclusion

The prior art made previously of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. US patent 4,789,663 is noted because on column 13, line 5 et seq, there is disclosed a method that is very similar to the claimed method.

Applicant should specifically point out the support for any amendments made to the disclosure, including the claims (MPEP 714.02 and 2163.06). Due to the procedure outlined in MPEP 2163.06 for interpreting claims, it is noted that other art may be applicable under 35 USC 102 of 35 USC 103(a) once the aforementioned issue(s) is/are addressed.

Applicant is respectfully requested to provide a list of all copending applications that set forth similar subject matter to the present claims. A copy of such copending claims is respectfully requested in response to this Office action.
